Gentlemen of the

PRESS—RADIO—TELEVISION

It is our aim to furnish the fullest and most efficient service to all of you during the coming year. This pocket size Roster and Record booklet is designed as a source of basic information—which may be of some assistance in your coverage of the Browns during the training season and throughout the 1954 National League campaign. We'll try to anticipate your needs — but please let us know of any suggestions or criticisms you may have.

We are no longer champions of the world, but we look forward to the 1954 season with a hope of regaining the title. We again pledge the finest football for football's finest fans.

Thank you for the splendid support you have given us during our eight years of operation. It has won for us an enviable position in the national sports scene. We hope that we'll continue to merit it.

PAUL E. BROWN, Coach & General Manager

When Paul Brown came to Cleveland a little over eight years ago, he pledged himself to bring to the citizens of Ohio the best in major league football. How well he has kept this pledge is best evidenced by the championship teams he has fielded—spirited teams, colorful teams, desirous teams.

Brown hopes to continue to send out winning clubs—to reach his goal of creating a grid dynasty. He refuses to support, or even consider, the theory that Cleveland's continued supremacy is harmful to pro ball. "Winning is not an evil thing", says Brown. "Winning fairly is an admirable accomplishment, no matter what the field of endeavor. I am a football teacher. If we win before 10,000 fans, that's swell. If we lose before 80,000, that's awful."

His successes at Massillon High School, Ohio State, Great Lakes and now with the Browns testify to the soundness of his methods. The Brown technique and philosophy are now thoroughly familiar to those who have watched his teams in action. Even in the pro ranks they reflect a definite touch of amateurism and that's as Brown wishes.

He insists that his players give it the old college try every minute they are on the field. Fierce desire is no mere figure of speech when Brown's the coach. His athletes are well-groomed in fundamentals. They look like athletes and they are fast. In other words, they have that "lean and hungry look" to borrow a Brownism.

Brown, a lean and hungry looking hombre himself, was born in Norwalk, Ohio, on September 7, 1908, but his family moved to Massillon when he was 12. In high school he quarterbacked the team for two years in a row although he never weighed more than 120 pounds. He enrolled at Ohio State University, but when he realized his weight might eliminate him from Big Ten competition, he transferred to Miami University. There he was the regular signal caller for two years—an above average passer and a good runner.

After graduating from Miami, Brown coached for two years at Severn, a preparatory school for the U. S. Naval Academy. One of his proteges there was the famous Slade Cutter of Navy.

In 1932, Brown returned to Massillon as the high school football and basketball coach. The Tigers had been in the athletic doldrums, but Brown produced a good team in his first season, winning six, losing three and tying one. Next year Massillon won eight and dropped two and in 1934 it won all but one of 10 contests. During the next six years Brown's teams played 60 games, winning 58, dropping one and tying one. They annexed six straight state championships. In Brown's nine seasons at Massillon, the Tigers scored 3,202 points to their opponents' 339. The 1940 Massillon machine, judged by Brown to be his best there, tallied 477 points to the enemy's six.

When Brown first came to Massillon, the capacity of the school's stadium was 5,000. In 1938 a new stadium seating 21,000 was erected and wasn't large enough. In 1940 Massillon played before 175,000 fans including 161,000 at eight home contests. Annually Massillon outdraws every college in the state with the exception of Ohio State.

Following a vigorous campaign by the Ohio State high school coaches' association, Brown was signed as the Ohio State mentor in 1941, replacing Francis Schmidt. In his first season the Buckeyes won six, lost one and tied one. In 1942, the Bucks were acclaimed Big Ten and national collegiate kings as they compiled a record of nine victories

PAUL BROWN'S COACHING RECORD

		Won	Lost	Tied	Points	Opp. Points
Severn Prep	1930-1931	16	1	1	.....	...
Massillon High School	1932-1940	81	7	2	3,202	339
Ohio State University	1941-1943	18	8	1	653	411
Great Lakes Naval Stat.	1944-1945	15	5	2	569	263
Cleveland Browns	1946-1953	94	15	3	3,006	1,452
		224	36	9

and one loss. This record won for him "The Coach of the Year" award. The 1943 squad, which could have been one of the mightiest grid machines in college history, was wrecked when all the 1942 stars and a great freshman roster were called into the armed services. Playing against teams which were loaded with naval trainees, the 1943 Buckeyes gave Brown his first and only losing season as a coach.

In 1944 Brown himself enlisted in the Navy. He was commissioned a Lieutenant and appointed athletic officer at Great Lakes where he coached football. His 1944 Sailors won nine, lost two and tied one. The 1945 outfit, loaded with green youngsters, got off to a bad start, losing three and tying one in its first four starts. However, the team under Brown's guidance came along nicely to win its last six in a row including a 39 to 7 victory over Notre Dame for 1945's greatest grid upset.

His first year in the pro ranks he moulded a mixture of professional veterans and inexperienced college kids into the first All-America Conference Championship team. He repeated again in 1947, and in 1948 piloted his club to an undefeated season, establishing an All-Time Major League mark of 15 victories and winning his third consecutive title. 1949 brought another championship to Cleveland, his Browns losing but a single game while winning nine and tying 2; then taking the first round Play-off Game with Buffalo by a 31-21 score and the Championship Game with the San Francisco 49ers, 21-7. Up to the time the 49ers defeated them in 1949 his great squad had continued its streak to 29 games without a setback. Paralleling his Massillon experiences, even the huge Cleveland Municipal Stadium with its 78,207 permanent seats has been taxed beyond its capacity time and again, 82,769 fans streamed through its gates to witness the Browns-San Francisco contest in 1948.

1950 marked his debut into the National Football League where his club continued their winning ways—piling up 310 points against opponents 144 for a record of 10 wins and 2 losses which left them in a tie for the American Conference title with the New York Giants. In the play-off his club beat the New Yorkers 8 to 3, and then went on to win the football championship of the world by defeating the Los Angeles Rams in a sizzler on a very cold December 24th day, 30-28.

The 1951 season was one of his most successful, winning 11 games and losing one to win the American Conference championship. However, this was little balm for the loss of the World Title to the Los Angeles Rams—the first championship lost by a Brown team since entering the pro ranks in 1946.

In 1952 and 1953, his Browns again won the Eastern Conference championship only to lose the World Title to the Detroit Lions. Paul Brown still holds a record of five consecutive championships and eight consecutive divisional championships—a record that may never be beaten.

Paul Brown and winning football are not strangers—they're partners.

PAUL BIXLER, End Coach

Paul Bixler brings a wealth of coaching experience into his first assignment in professional football, that of end coach and chief scout. Bixler has been in the business for 26 years, both as a head coach and assistant, including three seasons in which he was associated with Paul Brown as an aide at Ohio State.

Bixler is a native Ohioan and comes back to his home territory after coaching in the East for the last seven seasons, having served at Colgate as head coach for five years and at the University of Pennsylvania as an assistant the last two years.

In joining the Browns when Blanton Collier resigned to accept the head coach berth at the University of Kentucky, Bixler at last accepted a position first offered him nine years ago when the Browns were organized. At that time, Bixler was an assistant coach at Ohio State, but rejected Brown's offer to become the Bucks' head mentor in the unusual switch of coaches that saw Carroll Widdoes step down from the top spot to that of an aide.

Brown considered it fortunate to have a man of Bixler's qualifications available when he needed a new coach. Having worked under Brown previously, Bixler was acquainted with the head coach's system.

Bixler was a high school athletic star at Louisville (O.) High School, near Canton, and then enrolled at Mt. Union College, where he confined his athletic activity to football, captaining his team in his senior year.

He graduated from Mt. Union in 1929, and started coaching at Canton Central Junior High School, moving to McKinley High School in Canton two years later as assistant to Jimmy Aiken. It was while Bixler was at Canton McKinley and the Bulldogs were annual opponents of Brown's Massillon High School team that the two coaches first met.

When Aiken moved to Akron University in 1936, Bixler went along as an assistant in football and head basketball coach, remaining until the spring of 1939 when he became head basketball coach at Colgate. He led the Colgate cagers two seasons, then was appointed an assistant at Ohio State when Brown was named the Buckeyes' head mentor in the spring of 1941.

Bixler stayed at Ohio State six years, three as an assistant to Brown, two as Widdoes' assistant and one year as head coach. He then returned to Colgate as head football coach, a post he held until moving to Pennsylvania two years ago.

Bixler is married and is the father of six children, Dennis 16, Jane 14, Jack 12, Bill 11, Susan 9, and Paul 6.

HOWARD BRINKER, Backfield Coach

After two seasons as the Browns' end coach and chief scout, Brinker this season shifts his attention to the backfield and defense, the assignment held by Blanton Collier the last eight seasons.

"Brink" first became associated with Paul Brown when the Cleveland Coach was shaping the athletic dynasty at Massillon, Ohio.

A native of Canal Fulton, Brinker spent most of his life in Massillon until his graduation from Washington High School in 1932. That year, incidentally, was Brown's first year of coaching at Massillon. "Brink" entered Miami University where he was an outstanding center for three years. Next to him, at guard, was Fritz Heisler, Brown guard and center coach. Brinker still carries a curve in his nose which he received in a game against Cincinnati when he met Ray Nolting head on while doing a linebacking job on him.

Brinker graduated from the Oxford, Ohio school in 1939. The next two football seasons he served at Massillon. In 1941 he moved to Steubenville as line coach, succeeding to the head coaching position the following year. He remained at Steubenville, winning 24 and losing 12 before his appointment to the Ohio University staff in 1949.

Taking charge of the Ohio Bobcat line in the fall of that year, the Ohioans soon won recognition for their strong defensive record.

There was a 39 month time out when Brinker went into the United States Infantry, serving a year in Japan.

An astute student of football, Brinker holds a master's degree in physical education and is pursuing his doctorate in the off season.

Married, he makes his home in Cleveland, with his wife Mary.

FRITZ HEISLER, Guard Coach

When Paul Brown greeted his first squad of candidates at Massillon High School in the autumn of 1932, a 135-pound youngster named Fritz Heisler was trying out for the team. The boy clinched a first string berth on the club and was a regular on the 1933 eleven which was the first of Massillon's super teams.

Heisler, born in Massillon on May 18, 1915, had known Brown long before he reached high school. When Brown was quarterbacking Massillon's team, Heisler as a grade pupil used to watch the team's practice sessions daily. Always interested in the technical phases of the game, Heisler would ask Brown all sorts of questions about football.

From Massillon, Heisler went to Miami University where he won three football letters. Although weighing but 155 pounds, he held down a guard position and was chosen on several of the All-Ohio squads. At Miami, Heisler majored in physical education with the view of coaching.

Immediately after Heisler graduated in 1938, he was named a coaching assistant by Brown, then still at Massillon. When Brown moved to Ohio State in 1941, he took Heisler along as freshman football coach. On the Buckeyes' 1942 national championship team were such outstanding performers as Bill Hackett, Bill Willis, Tom James, Gene Fekete and others who had been freshmen under Heisler the previous season.

In March, 1942, Fritz was commissioned an ensign in the Navy. He coached at DePauw University in 1943 where he was stationed with the Navy's V-5 Cadet Unit. Heisler joined the Browns in January, 1946 following his discharge from the Navy as a full lieutenant.

In addition to handling the guards, Heisler this year was put in charge of the Browns' talent scouting. Married, he is the father of three boys, Bryan, George, and Kim.

EDWARD F. ULINSKI, Tackle Coach

Ed Ulinski was an outstanding guard with the Cleveland Browns through their four championship seasons in the All-America Conference and now starts his first season as tackle coach, thus becoming the first Browns' player to rejoin the team in a coaching capacity.

There was little hesitation on the part of Coach Paul Brown when a vacancy developed on his staff last January. Less than twenty-four hours after Weeb Ewbank resigned from the Browns' staff to become head coach of the Baltimore Colts, Brown announced the appointment of Ulinski. An exceptional blocker and keen student of line play, Ulinski was considered one of the most outstanding linemen ever to play for the Browns and Coach Brown had always looked forward to the day Ed would return to the organization as a coach.

During his years with the Browns, Ulinski had demonstrated the distinguishing qualities that make a good teacher.

The thirty-three year old Ulinski was born in Pittsburgh and played high school football at Ambridge (Pa.) High School for three years, captaining his team in his senior year. He was an All County choice in his junior and senior seasons.

At Marshall College, Ulinski was a three-year letterman, alternating between three positions—end, blocking back, and guard. He was named to the All-West Virginia teams in 1940 and 1941, and gained Little All-America mention in his last season.

He entered military service May 7, 1942, and was released to inactive duty as a captain in the Army Air Force four years later. He played two seasons of football, for the Second Air Force in 1944, and the Fourth Air Force in 1945.

Ulinski retired from professional football at the close of the 1949 season to enter coaching as an assistant to Dick Gallagher at Santa Clara University. When Santa Clara dropped football, he joined the Purdue University staff for one season.

Ulinski is married and makes his home in Shaker Heights, Ohio.

ANDERS, PAUL — FULLBACK

Paul Anders comes to the Browns directly from Korea from which he returned only recently after service with the Marines.

A 210-pounder, Anders will be a candidate as a linebacker with the Browns. He was a fullback at Penn State for two years before entering the service, then started the 1952 campaign at Parris Island before being sent to Korea.

Anders' home is in Monongahela, Pa., where he played high school football, also at the fullback position, for three seasons.

ARMSTRONG, QUINCY — CENTER

Quincy Armstrong was a unanimous choice for the All-Texas team and was named to the Little All-America while performing for North Texas State, where he was a teammate of Ray Renfro, in 1951.

The 230-pounder, standing six feet, three inches, is a candidate for offensive center with the Browns. Selected by New York Giants in their 1952 draft, Armstrong joined them in training camp, but went into the Canadian League after they released him.

Armstrong played only one year of high school football, at Paschal High in Fort Worth, Texas, before going on to star with North Texas State, where he backed up the line in addition to playing offensive center. Single, the 24-year-old Armstrong still makes his home in Fort Worth.

ATKESON, DALE — HALFBACK

Dale Atkeson is another player who will attempt to make his way in professional football without benefit of a college background. The twenty-three year old halfback, who stands six-feet, two inches and weighs 205 pounds, enrolled at the University of Southern California Extension School after graduating from high school and studied there while awaiting his call to Military Service, which came in January of 1951.

Following his release from the Navy last November, Atkeson decided to sign with the Browns. Though he played no college football, Atkeson established a wide reputation as a halfback with the San Diego Navy Team, Eleventh Naval District champions in 1951 and 1952, and runnerup for the national service championship in 1952. He was noted as a breakaway runner, frequently turning in long touchdown runs.

Atkeson played high school football in the Los Angeles area.

ATKINS, DOUGLAS — END

With his inaugural year of professional football behind him, Doug Atkins is the big hope to fill the Browns' defensive left end assignment left vacant when George Young retired at the end of last season. Atkins alternated with Young at the defensive spot last year.

Doug, who stands six feet, eight inches and weighs 250 pounds, was the Browns' No. 1 draft choice two years ago and displayed flashes of brilliance at times in his rookie campaign. A high jumper in track, capable of clearing six feet, six inches, Atkins often used a high-jumping technique while attempting to elude enemy players trying to carry out pass protection assignments.

A native of Humboldt, Tenn., where he was better known as a basketball player, (he set a Tennessee high school scoring record that still stands), Atkins went on to the University of Tennessee where he was regarded as the strongest lineman ever to play for the Vols. In his senior year, Doug was named to various All-Southern and All-American teams, United Press and International News Service picking him on their first All-America squads.

Atkins was married to the former Joyce Lloyd of Knoxville, Tenn., last February. He is seventeen inches taller than his bride, who stands only five feet, three inches.

BASSETT, MAURICE — FULLBACK

The name of Maurice Bassett is one that won't ring many bells among football fans — or wasn't until last January when the Browns selected this comparatively unknown player in the third round of the National Football League draft meeting.

Just out of the Navy, in which he served forty months, Bassett was discovered while playing for the Naval Amphibian Base at Coronado, Calif., against the Fort Ord Army Team late last season. He was immediately signed to a Browns' contract as a free agent, but a question developed over whether or not he was eligible for the league player draft and the Browns regarded him as such a great prospect that they made doubly sure they would get the rights to Bassett by naming him in the third round.

The twenty-three year old fullback, who played only one year of college football at little Langston University in Oklahoma, stands six feet, one-and-a-half inches and weighs 235 pounds. He is rated an outstanding prospect by Coach Paul Brown. Bassett is a terrific runner and in the Fort Ord game, playing against players with wide professional backgrounds, gained 185 yards in twelve attempts.

Bassett was an all around athlete at Chickasha High in Oklahoma, winning four letters each in football, baseball, and basketball. He was an All-State choice in football and captained the Chickasha basketball team two straight years.

BRADLEY, HAROLD — GUARD

Harold Bradley, the University of Iowa's most valuable player in 1950, again strives to make his debut in professional football. He first signed a contract with the Browns a year ago, but didn't receive his release from the Army in time to report to training camp.

A 230-pounder, standing six feet, two and a half inches, Bradley is expected to be one of the candidates for the middle guard job on the defensive line, left vacant by the retirement of Bill Willis last winter.

Harold is one of two Bradleys to have starred for Englewood High School in Chicago. The two careers, however, were separated by some 20 years, Harold's father having been an All-State performer at Englewood in 1926.

After graduating from high school, Bradley enrolled at Iowa, where he won three football letters, captaining the Hawkeyes in his senior year. In the Marines in 1951 and 1952, Bradley played for San Diego and was selected for a defensive post on the All-Eleventh Naval District Team in 1952. Last year before his release from service, Bradley played with a Navy-Marine All-Star Team against the Los Angeles Rams.

Bradley was an art major in college and he has won several art awards, including one from Collier's magazine.

BREWSTER, DARRELL (PETE) — END

After being listed the third-ranking player in basketball-minded Indiana in his final year of high school, Darrell Brewster went to Purdue University on a basketball scholarship. But he also was granted permission to try out for football with the Boilermakers and in his last season his outstanding end play earned him Purdue's most valuable player honors.

Pete now is in his third season with the Browns. He filled in on both offense and defense in his first year and last season succeeded Mac Speedie as the first-string offensive left end. Hitting his stride in midseason, Brewster compiled a fine record, making 32 catches for 632 yards and four touchdowns.

Brewster was one of the Chicago Cardinals' early draft choices in 1952, but was acquired by the Browns in a trade.

Darrell is married and the father of one child. Though he still calls Portland, Ind., his home, Brewster spent last winter building a new home in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida. "Guess I inherited some of father's ability to use a hammer and saw," Brewster commented before starting the project. Pete's father was a carpenter.

CARODINE, TOM — HALFBACK

A product of Father Flanagan's Boys Town in Nebraska, Tom Carodine brings a wealth of football experience and talent into professional football. Just out of the Marine Corps, in which he served as an instructor in rifle marksmanship, Carodine comes to the Browns after playing the last two years for Camp Pendleton in California.

Though Carodine is known mainly as a running halfback, he is a fine punter, place-kicker, and in high school won All-Nebraska recognition as a southpaw T-quarterback. At Boys Town, Carodine became one of the school's most outstanding athletes, winning three letters in football, four in basketball, four in baseball, and four in track. He also was an All-State choice in basketball and, appropriately enough, was the Nebraska State dash champion in track in 1948.

His interests weren't confined to athletics at Boys Town for he was a member of the choir for five years and the band one year. He was president of his freshman, sophomore and junior classes and as a senior achieved the highest honor that can come to a Boys Town student by being elected Mayor by popular vote.

After leaving Boys Town, Carodine played football and basketball at both Loyola University of Los Angeles and Nebraska University before entering the Marines in February of 1952. Carodine, who stands six feet and weighs 185, is twenty-five years old, married and the father of two children, Tom E. Jr., four and Lafayette, two.

CARSON, JOHN — END

Drafted by the Browns in 1953, John Carson completed his final season of college eligibility at Georgia by tying for the top spot among the nation's pass receivers with 45 catches for 633 yards and winning All-American recognition last year.

The 24-year-old Carson is a versatile athlete. He won letters in five sports in high school and in four sports at Georgia. He won All-State honors in football in his junior and senior years in high school, led the state in scoring in basketball in his senior year and, while still a high school athlete, was a quarterfinalist in the national public links golf tournament.

At Georgia, Carson won three football letters, three in golf and two each in basketball and baseball. He reached the quarter finals of the N. C. A. A. golf tournament in 1952.

CATLIN, TOM — CENTER

Tom Catlin was one of the factors that made the Browns' big trade with the Baltimore Colts involving fifteen players in the spring of 1953 pay off handsomely a year sooner than expected. Catlin was one of the five players the Browns got in exchange for ten sent to Baltimore and one of two immediately available to the Browns.

Though he was much lighter than most of the players who have served as linebackers for the Browns in past years, weighing only 205 pounds, and though he was late reporting to training camp because of duty with the College All-Stars, Catlin began making inroads on a berth soon after he got into action.

He alternated with Walter Michaels as the left linebacker most of the season.

A native of Ponca City, Oklahoma, Catlin began demonstrating athletic prowess as soon as he reached high school. He starred in four sports—football, basketball, baseball, and track. He captained the football team in his senior year and won All-Oklahoma recognition.

At Oklahoma, under Coach Bud Wilkinson, Catlin immediately burst into prominence as a college football player. As a sophomore he teamed with the Sooners' captain, Bert Clark, to form a deadly linebacking combination. As a junior, Tom became a two-way performer though the colleges still were two years away from abolishing the two-platoon system. Tom added the chores of offensive center to his duties and achieved recognition as a great blocker in Oklahoma's split T formation. In his senior year, Tom won wide-spread All-American acclaim, on both offensive and defensive units.

Catlin passed up a chance to work the past off-season to continue his studies at Oklahoma. A member of the R.O.T.C., Catlin also received his commission in the Air Force in June. Single, he still makes his home in Ponca City, Oklahoma.

CHAPMAN, HOWARD — TACKLE

After two years at Tyler Junior College, Howard Chapman transferred to the University of Florida where he became a regular tackle in his final two seasons of college football. A defensive tackle in his first season of college football, Chapman held down a regular job on Florida's Gator Bowl team. Under the one-platoon system last season, Chapman again was a regular.

Texas-born, Chapman played high school football at Corsicana (Texas) High School, winning two letters and being selected on the All-State Team in 1949. He also played center in basketball and was a shot-putter in track. Married, Chapman now makes his home in Gainsville, Fla.

COLO, DON — TACKLE

It was a long time between "Browns" and a string of victories for Don Colo, Cleveland's 260-pound defensive right tackle.

Colo was a star at Brown University for four years, completing his college work in 1950, then put in consecutive seasons in the National League with the Baltimore Colts, New York Yanks, and Dallas Texans before landing in Cleveland last year.

With the Browns, Colo was on the winning side in the first four weeks of the season oftener than he had been in his three previous years in pro football. The Browns won their first four, while the Colts, Yanks, and Texans had recorded one victory apiece in the campaigns Colo was with them.

Don now has no regrets about his experiences with three losing teams. "I learned a lot about the game playing with those teams", Don says. "Above all, I became aware of one important thing. That was, that I truly love football. You have to like it to play on losing teams three straight years. It would have been easy to quit."

Don, who was acquired by the Browns in last year's ten-for-five deal with Baltimore, never played football until he was twenty-one years old. His home town of East Bridgewater, Mass., had no high school team and following graduation from high school Don entered the Navy. It was after his service discharge that Don, then a 240-pounder, decided to enter college and try out for football.

He picked up the game quickly and moved into a regular job on the line in his freshman season and winning All-Ivy League honors in his final campaign.

In the Navy, Colo served in the Pacific area and accumulated nine battle stars.

Colo is single. "I've been moving around so much since entering pro football, I never got to know a girl well enough to ask her to marry me", Colo commented.

FILIPSKI, GENE — HALFBACK

Gene Filipski was one of several players drafted by the Browns for "future delivery" at the 1953 National League meeting. He was taken in the ninth round, but Gene completed his college eligibility last season at Villanova, then wound up his college career with sparkling performances in both the East-West and Senior Bowl contest, playing on the winning North squad, coached by Paul Brown.

Filipski began gaining All-American acclaim as a high school player in Sacramento, Calif., where he played for Grant Union High School. He was named to the All-California team and received honorable mention on the scholastic All-American in 1949.

Gene was appointed to the United States Military Academy and became a regular halfback as a sophomore, bursting into prominence early by reeling off a pair of long touchdown runs in Army's 27-13 conquest of Pennsylvania that season. The last two years, Filipski played for Villanova, where he became an All-American halfback in 1952. He had another fine year last season, scoring five touchdowns, though Villanova had a losing season.

Filipski had a narrow escape with death at Christmas time in 1951. He missed the plane on which he was to travel to California for his Christmas leave and the plane crashed, killing nineteen cadets aboard.

FISHER, CHARLES — HALFBACK

An All-Ohio Valley Conference choice while playing for Evansville (Ind.) College last season, Charles Fisher comes to the Browns as a candidate for a defensive backfield position. He was signed as a free agent.

The 180-pound Fisher, a native of Evansville, Ind., was an all around athletic star at Reitz High School in Evansville, winning a total of 13 letters in four sports, four in track and basketball, three in football and two in baseball. He was selected on the All-Indiana high school team two years in a row, in 1946 and 1947.

In college, Fisher played only football, quarterbacking Evansville for three years and captaining the team in his senior year. He is a brother of Earl (Pete) Fisher, who played football at Indiana University for three years.

FORD, LEONARD — END

After the Browns' first game with the New York Giants last season, a 7 to 0 victory in which Lennie Ford had been particularly effective in helping the Browns achieve a shutout, a visitor to the team dressing room asked Coach Paul Brown if he got that kind of effort out of Ford every Sunday. Brown replied in the affirmative.

It is typical of the kind of game Ford, the huge defensive right end, plays week after week. "I have to do it that way", Len will comment. "The result you get from any endeavor depends upon the effort you put into it."

This is Ford's fifth year with the Browns. When the All-America Conference went out of business at the close of the 1949 season and the players from the Los Angeles Dons were made available in a special draft, Ford was one of the Browns' early choices. The Browns already were well fortified with talented ends, but Ford turned out to be the team's prize choice that year.

He became the defensive regular at right end. Seriously injured in midseason, Lennie missed several games, but with a specially designed helmet, came back in the championship game with Los Angeles, turned in a superb performance and helped the Browns win the title.

Ford started his athletic career at Armstrong High of Washington, D.C., playing football, basketball, and baseball. He captained all three teams in his final year and won All-City honors in each sport.

Lennie then went on to Morgan State College, later transferring to the University of Michigan, where he achieved All-Big Ten and All-American honors.

During the off season, Len operates his own real estate business in Detroit and is studying law. His wife also is an attorney. "I'm studying law to understand what she's talking about," Lennie comments.

The Fords have two children.

FORESTER, HERSCHEL — GUARD

Herschel Forester is the property of the Browns for the second time, though he hasn't as yet played a game of professional football. First drafted by the Browns in 1952, Forester was one of two Texans traded to Dallas in the deal that made George Ratterman a member of the Browns.

Before the football season opened, Forester was inducted into the Army Air Force, and when the Dallas franchise was transferred to Baltimore, Herschel was regained by the Browns in the big ten-for-five deal with the Colts in the spring of 1953.

Forester won three letters as a guard at Southern Methodist, captaining the team in 1951, where his brother, Bill, also starred for three years. Bill now is with the Green Bay Packers.

Last season, Forester was with the Hamilton Air Force Base Team, which won nine of ten games. He captained the team and was named the most valuable player.

In the service, Forester served as a special agent in the office of special investigations. Single, his home is in Dallas, Texas.

GARRETT, ROBERT — QUARTERBACK

The nation's Number One college football player last year was Bobby Garrett, taken by the Browns as the bonus choice at the National League's annual draft meeting.

Garrett closed out his college career at Stanford University by leading the college players in forward passing, completing 118 of 205 attempts for 1,637 yards and 17 touchdowns. He had a 57.6 completion average. Playing the safety position on defense under the new college rules, Garrett also led the country in interceptions with nine, returning them for a total of 80 yards and one touchdown. He also topped the field in extra points, making 26 of 30 tries.

Garrett was Stanford's regular quarterback for two seasons. After serving as understudy to Garry Kerkorian in 1951, Bobby stepped into the regular berth as a junior and completed 60 aerials for 871 yards and ten touchdowns, though he missed the last two games of the year because of a shoulder injury.

A sturdily built boy, standing six feet, one inch and weighing 190 pounds, Garrett has fine poise and handles the ball surely. He also did Stanford's punting as well as place-kicking last year. He kicks left-footed.

Garrett was born in Los Angeles on August 16, 1932, and competed in sports at South Pasadena High School, being an all around star. He was named to the All-America High School football team in 1949, was an All-League choice in basketball and All-Southern California as a catcher in baseball. At Stanford, Garrett played only football.

Garrett's father, a real estate broker in California, also was an all around athlete, playing football and baseball at Georgetown University.

Bobby was married on June 19, 1954, to the former Joan Connelly of San Marino, Calif., where they make their home.

GATSKI, FRANK (Gunner) — CENTER

The center position in the T formation often has been described as the toughest job in football and the player carrying out this assignment flawlessly and without relief for the Browns the last six years has been Frank Gatski.

Frank has all the physical requirements for the job. He's tall, standing six feet, three inches, is "split high," and opposing linemen don't find his solid 240 pounds easy to move.

When Gatski is described as being "split high," it means he has long legs and the quarterback doesn't have to crouch when in position to take the ball from center. He can stand up and get a good view of the opponents' defensive pattern. Once the ball is snapped, Gatski becomes a key man in protection for the passer, for he has to hold off the middle man of the defensive line long enough for the quarterback to retreat into passing position.

"You never have to worry about anyone jumping over Frank or bumping him out of the way to mess up a play," the Browns' Otto Graham has often remarked.

Though Gatski was one of the original Browns, signing his first contract in 1946, it wasn't until after Mike Scarry's retirement at the start of the 1948 season that Frank became a regular. He spent his first two years in pro football as an "observer," watching the way Scarry played the offensive center position. Since becoming the regular, Gatski has participated in virtually every offensive play run by the Browns in the last six campaigns.

Gatski was born on St. Patrick's Day in the coal mining district of West Virginia. He played three years of football at Marshall College before entering the Army in which he served for three and a half years. When the Browns were organized, Johnny Brickels, then an assistant to Coach Paul Brown, recalled the big blond from Marshall who played against Brickels' West Virginia team, and signed him to a contract.

Gunner is known as the silent one among the Browns, but he becomes a loquacious one when archery is mentioned. He is an ardent enthusiast of the bow and arrow. Married, Gatski makes his home in Grant Town, West Virginia.

GIBRON, ABE — GUARD

At the end of the 1950 football season, when Paul Brown was coaching the Eastern Conference All-Stars in the Los Angeles Pro Bowl Game, one of his defensive halfbacks, Emlen Tunnell of the New York Giants, asked the name of the "wild man" who played for him with the Cleveland Browns. After asking a few questions, Brown decided Tunnell must have had Abe Gibron in mind. It was the Giant safety man's way of describing the manner in which Gibron travelled downfield when the Browns had to punt.

For the last few years, Gibron's act of speeding downfield in pursuit of a receiver has packed some extra thrills into the Browns' football games. Though he stands only five feet, ten inches, and weighs 240 pounds, Gibron packs a lot of speed.

Born in Michigan City, Ind., on Washington's Birthday, Abe came to the Browns along with Rex Bumgardner and John Kissell in the merger deal between Cleveland and Buffalo in 1950. He's heavier than Cleveland guards usually weigh, but with his fine speed, he has been an ideal guard and ranks among the topflight offensive linemen in the National Football League.

Abe starred in football, golf, and track at Michigan City High School, where his coach was Duane Purvis, former Purdue star. After serving in the Marine Corps, Abe entered Valparaiso University, lettering in three sports, and then transferred to Purdue where he starred for three years at guard and won All-Big-Ten honors.

Gibron suffered a knee injury early last season, but disregarded a specialist's suggestion that he take it easy the remainder of the schedule. He came back in a few weeks and held down his regular job. Abe had surgery on the knee during the winter and anticipates another big season.

Single, Gibron still makes his home with his mother in Michigan City.

GIERULA, CHESTER — TACKLE

Chosen in the tenth round of the 1951 draft, Chester Gierula is up for his first season of professional football following two years in the Army.

Gierula was a top-flight tackle at the University of Maryland, lettering in each of his four years there and achieving All-Conference and All-America mention. He enrolled at Maryland after starring for Allentown (Pa.) High School for three years.

Gierula specialized in defensive play at Maryland and will try to fill the same role with the Browns.

Since his release from the service, Gierula has been employed as an automobile salesman in Washington, D.C. He is married and now makes his home in College Park, Md.

GILCHRIST, CHESTER — HALFBACK

It took a special ruling by National League Commissioner Bert Bell to make Chester Gilchrist, 19-year-old halfback, a member of the Browns.

Gilchrist has no college background, having played only high school football. As a member of the Har-Brack High team near Pittsburgh, Gilchrist was the sensation of last year's Pennsylvania high school season. Although a National League ruling prohibits member teams from signing players before graduation of what normally would be their college class, Bell granted the Browns permission to sign Gilchrist after being assured by the Har-Brack principal that Chester had no "college aspirations or intentions."

Gilchrist last season led Har-Brack through an unbeaten season and to the championship of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League championship. He led the team in scoring and polled the most votes in the balloting for the All-Pennsylvania team.

GILLOM, HORACE — END

Although Horace Gillom lost his two-year-old title as the National League's leading punter to Pittsburgh's Pat Brady last season, his punting remained one of the Browns' important weapons, the league statistics reveal.

His long, high kicks, enabling many members of the Browns' punting unit to get near the receiver about the same time the ball arrived, held opponents' safety men to an average return of 4.5 yards. Many times they let the ball roll dead, the figures showing only 35 of his 63 efforts being returned.

Gillom is back for his eighth season with the Browns. He joined the team in 1947, and in addition to doing all the punting since then has served as a utility end, playing offense and defense at both left and right end at various times in his seven years with the team.

A 225-pounder, Gillom started his athletic career under Paul Brown at Massillon High School and has been described by Brown as the greatest athlete he ever coached in high school. He was an All-Ohio choice in both football and basketball in 1939 and 1940.

He enrolled at Ohio State in 1941, but entered the Army before he played a game. After his discharge, Gillom enrolled at the University of Nevada, where he played for one of Brown's old high school coaching rivals, Jimmy Aiken.

Gillom is married and still makes his home in Massillon.

GORGAL, KEN — QUARTERBACK

Ken Gorgal was exposed to professional football early in life. As a youngster, his mother bundled him up every Sunday afternoon and followed the Rock Island (Ill.) team, for whom Ken's father, Alex Gorgal, played halfback. Those were days Gorgal developed an intense dislike for the game, a dislike caused by an occasional blackeye his father would wear following some rugged contact.

But by the time Gorgal reached high school age he had developed an interest in football and made the St. Bede's Academy team as a freshman. He won four football letters and also starred in basketball and baseball.

Ken then enrolled at Purdue, but he was a senior before he began attracting much attention in college football. In his final season with the Boilermakers, Ken became known as the "Iron Man" by playing 419 of a possible 540 minutes, performing at quarterback on offense and playing the safety position on defense. It was his fine defensive play that season that caused Coach Paul Brown to take him high in the 1950 draft.

Ken's pro career followed an opposite course. He took over the number one safety position shortly after arriving in camp in his rookie year with the Browns and was rated among the top first-year men in 1950. Tall and fast, he has two of the chief assets for defensive duty.

After one season with the Browns, Gorgal entered military service and was assigned to the Army's Counter Intelligence Corps. He was away from football for two years, but returned last season to resume his old assignment in the defensive backfield.

Gorgal is married and is the father of twin daughters, Diane and Denise. He took up permanent residence in Cleveland last year and started work as an insurance salesman in the off-season.

GRAHAM, OTTO — QUARTERBACK

When the Cleveland Browns opened their 1953 training camp, one of the most spirited players reporting for duty was Otto Graham, a veteran of seven seasons of professional football.

Though he had been one of pro football's topflight performers for seven years, Otto readily admitted he had a changed attitude. "Only one way to explain it," Otto commented in an interview. "I'm more serious about everything I do and guess I've changed in a lot of ways. I've been working hard at everything. I put in a lot of work in my insurance business and when I went out on speaking engagements I took an interest in people for the first time in my life. I tried to get their names and remember them."

Football still provided the same thrill for Otto that it had the first time he became interested in the game back in Waukegan (Ill.) High School. He then proceeded to have his greatest season of all time with the Browns, completing 167 of 258 passes for a net gain of 2,722 yards. His 64.7 completion average for the regular season was the second highest ever posted in the National Football League for a season's play, being topped only by the 70.3 average achieved by Washington's Sammy Baugh in 1945.

As a result of his great year, new honors were heaped upon Graham. He was selected to the Associated Press All-Pro team for the fifth time, was named pro football's outstanding performer by both the United Press and Sport Magazine.

Graham was the first player signed by Paul Brown when he undertook the job of organizing his first professional football team. Though he was planning his offense and knew Graham had only a smattering of experience as a T quarterback, Brown picked Otto because of his exceptional ability to throw the ball. Brown was sure Graham had all the requirements to become a good man at the T position and the records of the last eight years are proof this observation was correct.

In his years with the Browns, Graham has directed the high-geared Cleveland offensive that has led the team to 94 victories against only 15 defeats and three ties, including 10 championship and playoff games. His passes have been directly responsible for one-third of the 2,990 points the Browns have scored. He has attempted 2,201, completed 1,224 for 19,771 yards and 148 touchdowns.

Otto was born in Waukegan, Illinois, December 6, 1921, starred in football and basketball there and then enrolled at Northwestern where he became an All-American performer in both football and basketball. In 1943, Otto won the Chicago Tribune trophy as the most valuable player in the Western Conference. His biggest day that season came against Michigan when he completed 20 of 29 passes.

Graham twice played with the Chicago All-Stars and both times the collegians whipped their professional adversaries. In 1943, Graham helped the Stars whip Washington, 27-7, as he ran 95 yards for a touchdown —the longest run ever made in the All-Star classic. Three years later, Otto passed for one touchdown as the Stars defeated the Los Angeles Rams, 16-0. In 1951 he played in the All-Star Classic for the third time, but with the pros, where he led the Browns to a 33-0 win over the collegians.

During the war, Otto was a flyer in the Navy and it was while he was at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, that he first became familiar with the T. He played fullback and quarterback on the Pre-flight team that upset a strong Navy squad in 1944. Though the team used the single wing, Otto began working with the T under the guidance of Ray Bray of the Chicago Bears. Bray was a member of the Pre-flight team.

It wasn't until Otto joined the Browns, however, that he was developed into an accomplished T quarterback.

Away from football Graham's idea of a good evening's entertainment is to play the piano, violin, cornet or French horn. He is a talented musician and says Wagner is his favorite composer. Otto says the rhythm he has acquired in music helps his timing in football.

He is a top-flight handball player, a low 70 golfer, and a fine swimmer.

He is married, the father of three children and makes his home in Bay Village, a suburb of Cleveland.

Otto's eight year passing record with the Browns:

GROZA, LOU — TACKLE

Although he plays tackle and has scored only one touchdown in eight years of professional football, Lou Groza's name is found frequently among the scoring records in the National Football League.

When he converted the extra point after Billy Reynolds' opening touchdown in the memorable game the Browns played against the San Francisco 49ers in Cleveland Stadium last November 15th, it marked the 42nd straight game that Groza had scored one or more points. It beat the old record of 41 the famed Don Hutson of Green Bay established in a streak that started late in 1940 and ended in the seventh game of 1944. Before the season had ended, Groza had upped his own record to 45 straight by scoring in each of the Browns' last three regular season games. The streak started on October 17, 1950, against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

By kicking 23 field goals last season, Groza also beat his own National League record of 19 for a season's output and the performance hiked his four-year total to 65, which surpassed Bob Waterfield's old all-time mark of 60. Another record held by Groza is for consecutive points after touchdowns. He kicked 109 straight before the string was snapped after the Browns' third touchdown against the Chicago Cardinals in last year's second game.

Groza's name also figures in several playoff game records. Having participated in four of the post-season classics, Lou is tied with the Chicago Bears' Jack Manders for most field goals in championship games with five and shares the title of most field goals in a single game with Manders and Bob Snyder at three. Lou's three came in last year's title game at Detroit. He also has kicked the longest field goal on record for a title contest, booting one 52 yards against the Los Angeles Rams in 1951.

Lou's prowess in propelling the ball accurately for long distances has consistently made him the Browns' leading scorer and one of the top point-makers in the National League. He missed the scoring title by only six points last year, being edged by San Francisco's Gordy Soltau on the final day of the season, 114 to 108.

Groza's field-goal kicking many times has been the difference between victory and defeat for the Browns, with 1950 being his greatest year in this respect. His three-pointers that year meant the difference in five games, including the divisional playoff game with the New York Giants and the championship battle with the Los Angeles Rams when he kicked a field goal with only twenty seconds of play remaining to win, 30-28, for the Browns.

Besides his contribution to the Browns in a scoring way, Groza is regarded as one of the league's outstanding offensive tackles and last season was chosen on the Associated Press All-Pro team and won the Washington Touchdown Club's award as the season's most valuable professional football player.

In achieving recognition for his offensive line play, Groza did it with an intense desire to succeed and the perseverance to fulfill his ambition. Groza never played college football. He was a member of Ohio State's 1942 freshman team, but then entered the Army. Upon his discharge in 1946, Groza was signed by the Browns on the strength of his kicking ability. He saw little action, other than kicking, in his first two years in the pro league, but worked diligently to absorb as much knowledge of line play as possible, and in 1948 took over as the starting offensive left tackle.

Groza was an all around athletic star at Martins Ferry (Ohio) High School. There he won ten letters, three each in football, basketball and four in baseball. He captained each team in his senior year, leading the cagers to the state Class A championship and being selected as the most valuable player in the state tournament.

Though he was away from all forms of athletics while serving with the Army Medical Corps in the Pacific area, Lou often erected a makeshift goal post and practiced place-kicking in what leisure hours he could find.

Groza is married and now makes his home in Berea, Ohio. He is the father of two children, is engaged in the insurance business during the off-season and is part owner of two dry cleaning establishments, in Massillon, Ohio, and Salem, Ohio.

Groza's scoring record:

	T.D.	Extra Pts. Att.	Extra Pts. Made	Field Goals Att.	Field Goals Made	Total Points

HANULAK, CHESTER — HALFBACK

Chester Hanulak burst through the middle of Missouri's line on Maryland's second play of the season a year ago and sped 65 yards to a touchdown that started the Terps on the way to an unbeaten season, the national championship and a berth in the Orange Bowl Game against Oklahoma on New Year's Day.

Hanulak, the Browns second-round choice at last January's draft meeting, continued to sparkle throughout the season and soon became known as Hanulak from Hackensack (his home is in Hackensack, N.J.), Chet the Jet, and First-Down Hanulak. He led the Terps in ground-gaining with 765 yards in 77 tries for an average of 9.8 yards per try, top figure in the nation, and was the leading ground gainer in the Atlantic Coast Conference. His ten catches also were high for the Terps in pass receiving. He scored six touchdowns. Chet also led Maryland backs in rushing as a junior, when he was the team's leading scorer.

Standing five-feet, ten inches, and weighing 180 pounds, Hanulak puts on a great show with his running. He has a peculiar hip movement which characterizes his elusiveness and he has a great burst of speed once he sees daylight beyond the line of scrimmage. Last year, under the new college rules, Hanulak also became an outstanding and respected defensive back. He played the safety position for Maryland.

He received mention on many All-American teams last year, was selected on the All-Atlantic Coast Conference first team and was voted the most outstanding athlete in New Jersey for 1953.

Also a fine baseball player, playing the outfield for the Terps. Hanulak was one of the school's leading hitters three years in a row.

HILL, JAMES — HALFBACK

Hill earned the nickname of "Iron Claw" when he was a pass-catching end and high-scoring star for Booker T. Washington High School in his native Dallas, Texas, then put his speed on display as a college halfback at Sam Houston in Austin, Texas.

A 1950 graduate of Sam Houston, Hill comes to the Browns after coaching at Rosenwald High in Tulis, Texas, the last two years and will be tried as a halfback. He stands six feet, two inches, and weighs 190.

In both high school and college, Hill was a four-sport star, playing football, basketball, baseball, and running the dashes in track. He was an All-State end in high school and was the top scorer in the Texas State track meet two years in a row. In college, Hill was an all-conference choice two years in a row in football and was the conference 100 and 220-yard dash champion three straight years.

Hill played a year of football with the St. Louis Knights of the Central League and averaged two touchdowns per game. Married, the twenty-six year old Hill is the father of three children and now makes his home in St. Louis, Mo.

HOLDASH, IRVIN — CENTER

Though he was drafted by the Browns three years ago, being the sixth draft choice at the 1951 meeting, Holdash is taking his first fling at professional football. Since his graduation from the University of North Carolina in 1951, Holdash has been in the Army, serving in the Transportation Corps.

He is another of the many native Ohioans signed by the Browns, coming from the Youngstown area where he starred in three sports for little Austintown Fitch High School, captaining the football team in his senior year.

Holdash became the first Austintown Fitch athlete to make good in big time college sports and Irvin did it in a big way, being elected the North Carolina football captain for the 1950 season and winning All-America honors.

Holdash is single and makes his home in Youngstown.

HOWARD, SHERMAN — HALFBACK

Sherman Howard was obtained from the Dallas Texans early in the summer of 1951 in a trade that sent Weldon Humble, veteran Brown guard to the Lone Star club.

Howard, one of the fastest fullbacks in the league, broke into pro football in 1949 with the New York Yankees of the old All-America Football Conference. In that first year he led all ball carrying rookies with 459 yards. That total also put him among the leaders of the Conference. He continued to play first class ball and in 1951 showed his heels to the opposition with a total offense yardage of 790 yards, gathered in 21 passes and scored seven touchdowns.

Although a fullback, Brown converted the 28 year old, six foot, 195 pounder to a halfback in 1952, but the veteran may go back to fullbacking this coming season. He has speed, is a fine blocker, and an excellent receiver.

Born in New Orleans, he prepped at Wendell Phillips High School in Chicago, Illinois, monogramming in football, basketball, and track. He captained the basketball squad for two years.

He played a year at the University of Iowa before transferring to Nevada in 1946, where for three years he led his team in rushing and total offense and lettered in track.

A veteran of World War II, he served in the European Theatre and has two battle stars on his ribbon.

Sherman is married and has a teaching assignment in Chicago where he lives with his wife and two daughters during the off season.

HUGGINS, FLOYD — HALFBACK

First expected in the Browns' training camp two years ago, Floyd Huggins' pro football career was delayed two years while he served in the Navy. A former University of Florida star, Huggins turned in a brilliant season with the Olathe (Kansas) Naval Base team last season, gaining 847 yards rushing, scoring 14 touchdowns and posting a 41-yard punting average in six games.

Huggins is a native of Olathe, where he started his athletic career by lettering four times each in football, basketball and track while in high school. He captained each squad, won All-State honors in the first two sports and took first in the 100 and 440-yard dashes in the scholastic division of the 1947 Kansas Relays.

He starred in all sports at Fort Scott (Kansas) Junior College, then transferred to Florida where he won All-Florida honors and led the state in ground gaining and scoring in his final season. He played in the North-South game three years ago, scoring two touchdowns in the Christmas Day classic.

JAMES, TOM — HALFBACK

A fierce competitive spirit has been one of Tommy James' chief attributes in a long and colorful football career—and this was something discovered by Coach Paul Brown many years ago when both were at Massillon High School, Brown as football coach and James as a 130 pound red-headed sophomore trying to attract attention in spring practice.

Faced with a scrimmage session with a nearby college team and fresh out of right halfbacks, Brown inserted the courageous little red head and Tommy stood his ground against his much heavier opponents. He won a berth on the first team that fall, turned in three brilliant seasons of high school football, then became a star on the national championship team coached by Brown at Ohio State in 1942, and now is in his eighth season of pro football and seventh with the Browns.

Although he was a great running back in high school and college, James has been a defensive halfback with the Browns and last year was tied with Warren Lahr and Ken Gorgal in pass interceptions with five for the season.

James went into the Army immediately after his sophomore year in college, but returned for one season of play with Ohio State in 1946, then signed with the Detroit Lions. In the fourth game that season, Tommy broke his arm and was sidelined the rest of the schedule. He was signed by the Browns as a free agent the following year.

Tommy has overcome a series of mishaps to continue to star in football. In the Army he rolled over a 30-foot embankment travelling at sixty miles per hour in a jeep, and was seriously injured in an automobile accident near his home in Massillon two years ago.

Tommy is married, has two young sons, and still makes his home in Massillon.

JENKINS, ASA — HALFBACK

Asa Jenkins, born in Mississippi, but raised in Ohio, where he became one of the state's best-known athletes in the years 1947 through 1950, comes to the Browns after a year of coaching at Fort Valley State College in Fort Valley, Ga.

A six-foot, 205-pounder, Jenkins competed in football, basketball, and track at Mansfield (O.) High School, winning All-State recognition on the gridiron and hardwood and being a state hurdles champion in track. Jenkins then enrolled at Toledo University, where he continued to sparkle in all three sports for two seasons, transferring to Fort Valley State last year where he served as coach while continuing his school work.

Jenkins is married and is the father of one son, Asa Charles Jenkins III.

KIRTLEY, GORDON — END

Though he played small-college football, Gordon Kirtley was one of the Browns' high draft choices two years ago, but has been unavailable until this season because of military duty.

Kirtley played college football at Morehead State College in Morehead, Ky., winning All-Ohio Valley Conference honors in his final season. He won four letters in football and three as a basketball center, captaining both squads in his senior year.

Kirtley entered the Army immediately after his graduation from college and played one year of service football, with the Indiantown Gap, Pa., team which posted an 8-3 record two years ago.

Gordon was married in Stuttgart, Germany, while stationed there with the Army, although his wife's home town is Cranford, N. J. They now live in Paintsville, Ky.

KISSELL, JOHN — TACKLE

After an absence of one season during which he played in the Canadian Football League, John Kissell is back with the Browns in a bid to win back the regular defensive left tackle position he held for the three preceding seasons.

Kissell jumped to the Canadian League early in the summer of 1953, but visited Cleveland last winter and requested to be restored to the Browns' active list.

Six feet, three inches tall and weighing 250 pounds, Kissell is a snarling tackle on the field, but away from football devotes his time to sketching and singing.

John was born in Nashua, N. H., on May 14, 1923, and was an all-around athletic star in high school there, winning three letters each in football and basketball and two in track. The Nashua High football squad twice won championships and he captained the basketball team that was runner-up for the state championship.

He continued his prep period at LaSalle Military Academy in Oakdale, N. Y., playing tackle, guard and fullback, center in the basketball squad, and throwing the shot put and discus and running the sprints on the track squad.

He won three letters as a tackle at Boston College, was named to the All East and All New England squads and played in the Orange Bowl Game. He started his pro career with the Buffalo Bills, was named All-Rookie line-man in 1948, in the All America Conference and to the All-Pro team in 1949. John originally came to the Browns at the start of the 1950 season as part of the merger deal between the Browns and Bills when the Browns entered the National League.

KLEVAY, WALTER — HALFBACK

Near the bottom of the Browns' draft list in 1952, Walter Klevay has added several pounds since his college football days at Ohio State.

retains all of his terrific speed and rates a good chance to make the grade in professional football.

A native Ohioan, Klevay first participated in sports at little Independence High School, where he won a total of fifteen letters in four sports. In track he won three straight 220-yard dash championships in the state scholastic meet, being one of few boys in meet history to bag three crowns in a row.

At Ohio State, Klevay was a member of the Buckeyes' Big Ten and Rose Bowl Championship Team in 1949. Walt has been in the Army the last two seasons, and last year was a regular halfback on the Bolling Air Force Team.

Klevay is married and has two children, Walter S., Jr., three; and Theodore C., one.

KONZ, KENNETH — HALFBACK

Kenny Konz is one of the Browns who came up the hard way. Left fatherless at the age of four, Konz, as a grammar school boy, peddled papers before going to classes in the morning and swept out the bank in his home town of Weimar, Tex., after school to help his mother support the family. At the age of fourteen he was a ranch hand and two years later worked in a cotton field.

Though the school Konz attended—all twelve grades in one building— was too small to field a football team, Kenny played the six-man variety and played it well enough to get a football scholarship at Louisiana State University. The first football game he ever saw was one played by L. S. U. after he enrolled in college.

Konz took to the game readily and in his senior year in college was named to the All-Southeastern Conference first team by the Associated Press, was selected L. S. U.'s Most Valuable Player as he played both offense and defense and averaged 46 minutes of action per game, and was named to the school's "Athletes Hall of Fame." The latter award has been achieved by only thirty-four athletes in the school's ninety-year history.

But the biggest honor of all, Konz tells you, came several months after the close of his final season. That was when he was selected as the Browns' No. One draft choice at the 1951 National League meeting.

But even at that late date, Konz faced a struggle before he could join the Browns. Two years of duty in the Air Force faced him, two years in which he was away from football. But Kenny lost no time once he arrived in the training camp last season, picking up right where he left off to become a regular halfback with the Browns' defensive unit.

A 185 pounder, Konz has terrific speed which he called on constantly last year to chase opposing backs.

During the off-season, Konz returned to L. S. U. where he started work on his master's degree in geology. His ambition away from football is to do geological studies of oil fields by means of aerial photography.

KOSINSKI, WALLACE — QUARTERBACK

Back in August of 1952, when the Browns reported to Hiram College for the opening of their training camp, Wallace Kosinski still was a Hiram student. He was introduced to Coach Paul Brown by the Hiram mentor, Paul watched him in an exhibition of ball handling and forward passing, made a mental note of what he saw and signed Kosinski to a contract following his release from the Army.

Kosinski is a native of Bloomfield, N. J., and played four years of football for Hiram, being selected the team's most valuable player for the 1951 season. He also played college basketball.

Kosinski spent his service days in the Air Force and he hopes to have a sales position when his football days are over.

LAHR, WARREN — HALFBACK

Warren Lahr came to the Browns five years ago following his career at Western Reserve University where he established a reputation as a fine running halfback. A week after reporting to the Browns' training camp, an effort was made to convert Lahr into a T quarterback, but Warren was injured in an early exhibition game and lost for the season.

Though unable to play, Warren reported to the practice sessions daily throughout the 1948 season, absorbing the Browns' defensive system. He came up for another trial in 1949, earned a berth on the squad with his good play in exhibition games and became the regular defensive left halfback early in the season. He still is a good runner, but Paul Brown will use him defensively again this season because he believes it is easier to find an offensive halfback than an outstanding defensive player. And an outstanding defensive player he is. During the 1950 season he intercepted eight passes, returning two for touchdowns. A sensational interception against the Washington Redskins completely changed the complexion of that game.

In 1951 he repeated with two touchdowns by interception and picked up 95 yards in returns. He added five interceptions last season and returned them for 119 yards.

Lahr was born in Mt. Zion, Pa., on September 5, 1923, and lettered in football, basketball, and track at West Wyoming (Pa.) High School. He played at Western Reserve in 1942, spent three years in the Navy and then returned for two more years of college football in 1946 and 1947 before signing with the Browns.

Lahr was an All-Ohio halfback at Reserve in 1947 and was named the Red Cats' most valuable player.

Married and the father of three children, he makes his home in Aurora, Ohio. During the off-season, Lahr has a sales position with the Braden-Sutphin Ink Company of Cleveland.

LANGAS, ROBERT (Hooks) — END

Bob Langas comes to the Browns by way of Wayne University of Detroit and the Fort Belvoir Army team. Langas was passed up in the annual pro football draft after his final season at Wayne in 1951, but attracted much attention for his play with the Army team.

Bob was a regular end for the Fort Belvoir team that won eight, lost two, and tied one last season, and was selected on the All-Army first team.

A native of Detroit, Langas, who stands six feet, four inches, and weighs 220 pounds, played on a city championship team at Cooley High in Detroit in 1946, and was an All-City end the following season. He also played basketball both in high school and college.

LAVELLI, DANTE (la-vell-ee) — END

Dante Lavelli started on the path to becoming a tremendous end in professional football on the Ohio State campus in the summer of 1942. Lavelli, who was regarded as an exceptional runner and good passer as a high school gridder, played halfback on Ohio State's 1941 freshman team, but in spring practice the following year Paul Brown noted a peculiarity in Dante's stride. He decided it was something that would be hard to correct and might keep Dante from becoming a top-ranking back, so shifted him to end.

Dante spent the summer playing touch football on the campus, practicing a change of pace, faking and catching passes. By fall he made the Buckeye first team, but was injured in one of the early games and played in only one more game that season.

That was the extent of Dante's football experience until he reported to the Browns in August of 1946 to compete for a position with several boys who had been frequently mentioned on All-America teams as collegians. Dante not only made the squad, but became the regular offensive right end and led the league in pass receiving.

Succeeding years found Lavelli continually up with the leaders—making numerous All-Pro clubs including selection to the 1951 New York News and Sporting News honor teams.

Lavelli's primary assets are speed and large hands. Whenever he gets near the ball he rarely misses gaining possession. In discussing his technique Lavelli says he merely follows the pass patterns carefully. "It is my job to go in a certain direction and be at a certain spot at the proper count," Dante often has said.

Dante was born in Hudson, Ohio, February 13, 1923. It was at Hudson that he led his high school team to three unbeaten seasons. With the Army, in which he had no chance to play football for three and a half years, he served in France, Belgium and Germany.

Lavelli is married and the father of two children. He is the owner of the Lavelli Sales Co., an electrical appliance distributor.

Lavelli's record:

Year	Passes Received	Yardage Gained	Touchdown Passes
1946	40	843	8
1947	49	799	9
1948	25	463	5
1949	28	475	7
1950	37	565	5
1951	43	586	6
1952	21	336	4
1953	45	783	6
TOTALS:	298	4,850	50

LUCKY, WILLIAM — TACKLE

Bill Lucky, standing six feet, three inches, and weighing 240 pounds, is considered a promising candidate for the middle guard job on the Browns' defensive line.

Taken in the fifth round of last year's college draft, the former Baylor University star specialized in defensive play in his first two seasons of college football, but retained his stature as a starter last year under the new rules as he picked up the offensive line chores handily and achieved All-Southwest Conference recognition.

Bill was born in Temple, Texas, and played two years of high school football there. He has a younger brother, Wayne, who now is a member of the Baylor University varsity squad.

Away from football, Lucky has been working as a carpenter during the summer months the last few years in Temple, where he still makes his home.

LYSSY, CHESTER — END

Sammy Baugh, who lasted sixteen years as a professional football player, labels Chester Lyssy "a natural for the pro league."

"He has size, speed, and is a fine pass catcher," Baugh, who coached Lyssy in college, commented when the Browns signed the former Hardin-Simmons star.

As a pass receiver, Lyssy gathered 1,208 yards and nine touchdowns on 98 catches in three years of competition. He ranked eighth in the nation in pass receiving among the college players last season.

Lyssy also is an exceptional defensive player. He performed at the safety position for Hardin-Simmons last year and holds two school records. He intercepted seventeen passes in three years, and last year ran back one interception 86 yards to a touchdown against Trinity, the longest in Hardin-Simmons history.

Lyssy stands six feet, two inches and weighs 190 pounds. He has exceptional speed and ran the 440-yard dash for the Hardin-Simmons track team.

He is single and lives in San Antonio, Texas, during the off-season. It was in high school in San Antonio that Lyssy first became prominent in athletics, winning two letters each in football, basketball, baseball, and track.

MACERELLI, JOHN — GUARD

John Macerelli joins the Browns after spending two years in the Army, from which he was discharged only last July. A native of Pennsylvania, 220-pound John played college football at St. Vincent College in Latrobe, Pa., and it was on the recommendation of his college coach, Al DeLuca, that the Browns signed him.

Macerelli was a three sport star at Cecil Township High in Venice, Pa., winning four football letters, two in basketball, in which he was an All-Pennsylvania choice in his senior year, and three in baseball.

MAGDZIAK, EDWARD — FULLBACK

Edward Magdziak was signed by the Browns as a free agent following his release from the Army in which he served as a radio operator in Japan. A former William and Mary star, Magdziak entered the service shortly after getting out of college.

A native of Passaic, N. J., Magdziak played three years of high school football and was selected on the All-New Jersey team in 1947. He won four letters at William and Mary, was selected on the All-State team there and also won three letters as a third baseman in baseball.

Magdziak, who stands six feet, two inches and weighs 205 pounds, is a brother of Stan Magdziak, who had a trial with the Browns in 1948 as a quarterback.

MASSEY, CARLTON — END

Drafted by the Browns a year ago, but completing his final year of college eligibility before signing a pro contract, Carlton Massey enjoyed his greatest season a year ago by becoming a concensus All-American. He climaxed his college career with a great offensive and defensive performance in the East-West Game in San Francisco in which he won the Capt. E. Jack Spaulding Trophy as the outstanding lineman in the contest.

A six-foot, four-inch, 210-pounder, Massey is expected to be valuable on either offense or defense with the Browns, who named him as their eighth choice at the 1953 draft meeting.

Now twenty-four years old, Massey was born in Nevada, Texas, where he played three years of high school football as a tackle, and also earned letters in basketball and baseball.

Before enrolling at the University of Texas two years ago, Massey attended Southwestern College, where he was a two-year letterman.

Single, Massey now makes his home in Rockwell,Texas.

McCORMACK, MIKE — TACKLE

The big ten-for-five trade with the Baltimore Colts a year ago, which proved so beneficial to the Browns through the efforts of Don Colo and Tom Catlin last season, is expected to pay even bigger dividends this year now that tackle Mike McCormack is out ot the Army and back in professional football.

Mike was one of the big attractions in the deal, though the Browns were aware he would not be available last year. Standing six feet, four inches and weighing 235 pounds, McCormack was a standout tackle with the old New York Yanks in 1951, in his first season of pro football, and reported to the Dallas Texans a year later when the New York franchise was shifted to Texas, then entered the Army early in the season. His work with the Yanks was so impressive that he was selected to the Western Conference All-Star team and was a starting tackle in the 1952 Pro Bowl Game.

McCormack played with the Fort Wood Hilltoppers in service football last year and was selected on the service All-American, being second only to Ollie Matson of the Chicago Cardinals in the number of votes polled.

Born in Chicago twenty-four years ago, McCormack moved to Missouri as a youngster and played high school football at DeLaSalle High in Kansas City. He won three letters at Kansas University, and played in the East-West and Chicago All-Star games in 1951.

MICHAELS, WALTER — FULLBACK

A crashing fullback in both high school and college (he averaged 5.5 yards per try in a four-year career at Washington and Lee), the 225-pound Michaels has turned in a top-flight job as the left linebacker for the Browns in the last two years. This has not been a startling development, however, for he came to camp the first year labeled by his college coach as "the boy who turned in the fiercest linebacking ever seen in Virginia intercollegiate football."

Michaels has a full appreciation of what football has meant to him. Born in the coal-mining territory of Swoyersville, Pa., Big Walt was determined not to lead the life of a miner. He took to athletics and his achievements in pro football have enabled him to purchase a big dairy farm near Swoyersville.

"Give me that country air, where I can work out-of-doors and hunt and fish," Walt wrote last winter when he announced he "had gone in business for himself."

Michaels graduated from Washington and Lee with a major in psychology and education.

MILLER, JACK — HALFBACK

Jack Miller, who still regards a professional football game he saw a few years ago as his most fascinating experience, now finds himself in the pro game. The Browns' ninth draft choice at last winter's meeting, Miller banks heavily on his speed in football. A former state dash champion in his native Texas, Miller was a member of Southern Methodist's 440-yard relay team in track.

Miller won eleven letters as a high school athlete, two in football, four in basketball, three in baseball, and two in track. At Southern Methodist he confined his athletic endeavors to football and track.

MORRISON, FRED (Curley) — FULLBACK

A veteran of four seasons of professional football, Fred Morrison is starting his first year with the Browns, having been acquired in a deal with the Chicago Bears in which Harry (Chick) Jagade was sent to the Windy City.

Morrison was the Bears' No. 1 draft choice in 1950 following his brilliant final season with Ohio State's 1949 team which won the Big Ten championship and triumphed over California in the Rose Bowl Game.

A fine runner and pass receiver and one of the league's leading punters, Morrison was the Bears' first string fullback for four years, and led the team in yards gained rushing two years ago.

Last season, Morrison carried the ball 95 times for 307 yeards and a 3.2 average, caught 16 passes for 214 yards and posted a 42.6 punting average, the latter an outstanding figure considering that two of his efforts were blocked, cutting deeply into his average.

Morrison is a native of the Columbus (O.) area and as a high school gridder lived just around the corner from Coach Paul Brown when the Browns' mentor was head coach at Ohio State a decade ago. Morrison still lives in Columbus, is married and has three children.

MOTLEY, MARION — FULLBACK

Free of the knee trouble that hampered his play for two years, Marion Motley helped give the Browns the best one-two punch in the National League at fullback last season. Though he played only about a third of the time while Chick Jagade was assuming the role of regular, Motley managed to churn out a five-yard average carrying the ball.

Motley is back for his ninth season with the Browns, being one of five charter members still with the Club. Though he has lost some of the pickup and speed that made him one of the greatest fullbacks in pro football history, Motley still is expected to prove useful to the Browns. In addition to being available to take his turn at fullback, Motley is invaluable on the kickoff return unit and occasionally as a linebacker with the defensive unit.

Motley first came to the attention of Coach Paul Brown as a high school player. That was during three years of heated rivalry when Brown was coaching at Massillon High School and Motley was playing fullback for Canton McKinley. A few years later Motley was playing for Brown at Great Lakes, where both were serving in the Navy. Brown still tells the story of how a squad of 1945 Bluejackets he thought would be powerful was moved en masse to Camp Shoemaker, California. "The only player they left for me was Motley," Brown says. "They didn't take him because no one knew he was a football player."

Motley then starred for the Great Lakes team that gained experience each week and by the end of the season handed Notre Dame a stunning 39-7 defeat.

Marion was one of the leading ground gainers in the All-America Conference for four years and followed that record up by leading the National Football League in that department in 1950 with an 810-yard total.

Motley's record with the Browns:

Year	Attempts	Yards Gained	Average	Touchdowns
1946.....	73	601	8.23	6
1947.....	146	889	6.09	10
1948.....	157	964	6.14	7
1949.....	113	570	5.04	8

TOTALS:.....	826	4,712	5.70	39

NOLL, CHARLES — GUARD

Noll is one of the rarities in football—a fellow who was shifted from the backfield to the line and prefers the less glamorous assignment up front.

"I guess one always gets the most enjoyment out of doing the things he knows he can do best," is the way Noll explains his affection for line play over that of carrying the ball and getting into the headlines.

Chuck made good in a big way with the Browns in his inaugural season last year. Though he was far down the list in the 1953 player draft, being the 21st choice, Chuck was one of the Browns' prize rookies. Aggressive and a fine blocker, Chuck moved into the offensive right guard picture.

Noll played his early football at Benedictine High School in Cleveland, playing on the Bengals' city championship team in 1948. It was at Benedictine that he started as a fullback, then shifted to guard in his final season.

At the University of Dayton, Noll played offensive tackle and backed up the line on defense for three years. He co-captained the Flyers and was selected on the All-Ohio team in 1952.

Noll, who is twenty-two, stands six feet, one inch and weighs 215 pounds. He makes his home in Cleveland where he started in the insurance business last January.

PACE, JOHN — TACKLE

From the little southern community of Pace, Mississippi, comes John Pace, who will give the Browns' tackle corps some height. John, who starred at Mississippi State for three seasons, stands six feet, five and a half inches and weighs 225 pounds.

Pace was the Browns' tenth draft choice in 1952, but has been in the Army the last two football seasons. He played no football last year while serving in Japan and Korea, but was with the Camp Breckinridge team which posted a 12-1 record in 1952.

Pace is a newly-wed, having been married on June 26th, shortly after his discharge from the Army.

PAGNA, TOM — HALFBACK

In three years of college football for Miami University of Ohio, Tom Pagna averaged 6.4 yards per try rushing for 322 attempts and set two school records in his junior year. He gained 1,044 yards in 155 tries in his junior year, the same season he set a Miami scoring record with thirteen touchdowns for 78 points.

Pagna resembles in physical structure another former Miami University halfback, Ara Parseghian, who enjoyed two fine seasons with the Browns before returning to his alma mater as head coach.

Pagna won All-Ohio and All-Mid America Conference honors in both his junior and senior years at Miami. He played his high school football at Springfield Township High in the Akron (O.) area.

A fine student, Pagna was president of his junior class and secretary-treasurer of his sophomore class. He was married last November to the former Shirlie Leib of Akron.

RAIDEL, RICHARD — GUARD

Dick Raidel's college coach, Trevor Rees of Kent State, called Dick the "one player he coached who never made a mistake."

Though he was far down on the Browns' draft list last winter, being selected in the 20th round, Raidel is considered a great prospect for one of the offensive guard assignments. The twenty-one year old Ohioan was rated highly for his offensive performance as a college player.

Raidel played high school football at Austintown Fitch High near Youngstown, Ohio, winning three letters as a tackle and captaining the team in his senior year. He was a four-year letterman at Kent State, where he also captained the team as a senior.

An outstanding student, Raidel completed his college work last June with a 3.6 average for four years. He was a member of the National Honor Society and served as president of his college fraternity.

RAIFF, JAMES — GUARD

Away from football a year, James Raiff was signed by the Browns last spring as a free agent on the recommendation of Chuck Noll, who was his teammate for three years at the University of Dayton.

Raiff played the tackle opposite Noll at Dayton, but, like Noll, will be tried as a guard in pro football. He is a 235-pounder, standing five feet, ten inches.

Raiff is a native of Dayton, Ohio, and played his high school football at Dayton Chaminade as a halfback. He was shifted to the line in college and became an All-Ohio tackle.

RATTERMAN, GEORGE — QUARTERBACK

Bothered by a sore arm suffered in an automobile accident before the opening of last season, George Ratterman is in top shape again and ready to provide the Browns with expert protection for Otto Graham at quarterback. With Graham enjoying his greatest season a year ago, Ratterman started only one game in 1953, pitching the Browns to a 62-14 triumph over the New York Giants.

An unusual contract that Ratterman had with the New York Yankees made his acquisition by the Browns possible. In his contract with the Yanks was a clause, that in the event the New York franchise was transferred he would not have to make the move. So when the franchise went to Dallas, George elected not to transfer and the Browns made a deal for him.

One of the nation's most versatile athletes, he is loaded with talent and desire. He was a five-sport man in high school, making All-State in football, basketball, baseball, and track, and was runner-up in the State High School tennis tournament. This was when he attended St. Xavier High in Cincinnati, Ohio.

At Notre Dame he quarterbacked the National Collegiate Champions of 1946, played forward and guard on the cage squad, being named to the All-Madison Garden team in 1945 and 1946, played some baseball, and went to the quarterfinals in the National Intercollegiate tennis tournament. He lettered seven times at the South Bend school.

He went to the pros in 1947, starring for three years with the Buffalo Bills and one with the New York Yanks. In 1951 he played with the Montreal Alouettes but was back in the National League later that season.

When with the Bills he led them from a lowly sixth place to championship contention. His pitching and generalship tied the Browns twice in 1949—28-28 and 7-7. In 1950, with the Yanks, he was the busiest quarterback in the league with 294 attempts for 2251 yards to lead in the two departments.

His versatility is not limited to sports. He is a lawyer, an investment broker, a radio and TV sportcaster, a pianist of more than fair talent, and a former football coach at St. Bonaventure College.

Married, George lives in Ft. Thomas, Ky. with his wife Ann and four children.

RENFRO, RAY — HALFBACK

The first time Ray Renfro touched a ball in a game with the Cleveland Browns he fielded a punt in an exhibition game against the Green Bay Packers and rambled 58 yards to a touchdown. But then twelve months elapsed before the Texas flash really began to fulfill the high regard the Browns' coaching staff held for him.

After that glittering opening debut, Renfro spent the rest of his first season trying to get adjusted to pro football. He was used mainly on punt returns the rest of the campaign, then started the 1952 championship game against the Detroit Lions when Dub Jones was unable to play because of an injury.

Shifted to left half last season, Ray blossomed into a full-fledged pro star. Probably the fastest back in the league, Renfro, time after time came up with the key play of the game as the Browns rolled to an eighth consecutive division championship. He led the Browns in ground-gaining with 352 yards in sixty attempts for a 5.9 average and was second to Dante Lavelli in pass receiving with 39 catches for 722 yards. He scored nine touchdowns to trail only Lou Groza in individual scoring among the Browns. Picked by Coach Paul Brown to replace an injured back on the Eastern Conference All-Star team, Ray then capped his brilliant season by scoring the clinching touchdown in last January's Pro Bowl Game.

Born in Whitesboro, Texas, Renfro was an all-around athletic star at Leonard, Texas, High School, winning letters in football, basketball, and baseball. He played on five championship teams there, two in basketball and one in baseball.

At North Texas State College, Renfro dropped basketball and baseball to concentrate on football and track. He was a perennial 100 and 220-dash champion in the Gulf Coast Conference and set a record of 9.5 seconds for the 100-yard dash in the North Texas Relays. For four years of football competition, Ray averaged 7.7 yards per try carrying the ball.

Ray is one of the most generous and willing players on the squad, often volunteering to help out his teammates as a baby sitter, or assist the equipment manager with chores around the locker room. In his baby-sitting occupation, Ray will have an assistant this year. He was married during the off-season.

REYNOLDS, WILLIAM (Billy) — HALFBACK

When the Cleveland Browns drafted Billy Reynolds two years ago, observers who had watched him closely in his career at St. Mary's High School in West Virginia and at the University of Pittsburgh made this comment: "He is a player who responds terrifically to challenge."

Billy's own version of this is that when seemingly impossible situations develop he is fired up with an intense determination to succeed.

An example of Billy's determination developed a week before the end of his high school football career. St Mary's High was cruising along an unbeaten path with the school's chief rival yet to be met in the last game of the year. In the next to last game, Billy went down with a broken jaw, minimizing St. Mary's chances of winning the final contest and finishing with a perfect record.

But Reynolds wouldn't count himself out of the game. Though his only nourishment the following week was taken in liquid form and he was unable to practice, Billy suited up the night of the game, entered the contest when things looked rough and scored six touchdowns to lead St. Mary's to a decisive victory.

After his graduation from high school, a friend attempted to persuade Billy to enroll at Notre Dame, but Billy calmly told his friend it would give him a bigger thrill to be a member of a team thnt might beat the famed South Bend eleven. In his senior year at Pitt, Reynolds' ambition was fulfilled. He broke away on a 73-yard run that set up the Panther's victory over the Irish.

With the Browns last season, Reynolds was one of seven rookies who made good in a big way. A 190 pounder who is effective as a power runner, Reynolds alternated with the veteran Dub Jones at right halfback last season, carried the ball 72 times for 313 yards, caught nine passes for 120 yards, and scored three touchdowns.

Reynolds spent the off-season continuing his studies at the University of Pittsburgh, taking enough time off only to get married. His bride is the former Sheila Potts, whom he met in Cleveland last season.

SANDUSKY, JOHN — TACKLE

John Sandusky, the singing tackle, is the good humor man among the Cleveland Browns, overcame his sacroiliac trouble to have one of his finest seasons in 1953, and expects an even greater year this season.

As offensive tackle the last two seasons, Sandusky credits the use of his pads for the elimination of his back troubles last year. He never used the equipment in his high school or college days or in his first three seasons of professional football.

Sandusky attended high school in Philadelphia, where he was a classmate of Mario Lanza. Though he takes pride in his own talents as a soloist, Sandusky, if pressed, will admit Lanza is a superior singer. John got in only one year of high school football, illness keeping him out of action until his senior year. That one year was played at guard. "I was too small to play tackle on our high school team," John remarks. "I only weighed 225 pounds. Our tackles both weighed about 250."

After that one season, Sandusky entered the Army, served overseas for three years during World War II, then enrolled at Villanova following his discharge and starred for the Owls for four seasons. Named to many All-American teams in his last season and a standout in the annual North-South game, Sandusky was the Browns' No 2 draft choice in 1950. He actually was the 17th player chosen at that meeting, since the Browns traded the rights to Doak Walker to the Detroit Lions for their second choice.

For two seasons, Sandusky served as a utility tackle for the Browns, performing both offensively and defensively on both sides of the line. When Lou Rymkus retired at the close of the 1951 season, Sandusky moved in as the regular offensive right tackle.

Sandusky is married and has two sons. During the off-season he still makes his home in Philadelphia, where he works for a moving company.

SCHUEBEL, MAX — TACKLE

From Rice Institute in Houston, Texas, comes Max Schuebel, the Browns' 14th draft choice last winter, and a tackle described as very agile and hard-hitting.

Schuebel was described by the rugged Ray Correll of Kentucky as the player who gave him the most trouble in his college football career. He was a starting tackle all season for the Rice team that finished with an 8-2 season record and whipped Alabama, 28 to 6 in the Cotton Bowl last New Year's Day.

Though it was Dick Chapman, who played the tackle opposite Schuebel, who received most of the publicity as a Rice lineman, Schuebel was called the player "who did the solid, steady, and dependable job without too much flare but with plenty of accomplishment."

Schuebel has played all his football in the Houston area, having prepped at John Ragan High School there before enrolling at Rice.

SHIELDS, BURRELL — HALFBACK

Burrell Shields is another in the list of native Clevelanders to enter professional football with his home-town team. Burrell was born in Cleveland in 1929, starred in football, basketball, and track at Cleveland East Tech High School, and then continued his athletic career at John Carroll University.

A 1952 graduate of John Carroll, Shields was drafted that year by the Browns, but has been in the Army the last two football seasons. He played service football and basketball at Fort Monmouth, being a member of the First Army championship team in basketball.

Shields is married to the former Belle Winston of Huntington, W. Va.

THOMPSON, THOMAS — CENTER

Four weeks before the end of last season, Tommy Thompson's greatest season in professional football ended when he suffered an injury that medical science dictates should end a player's career. Playing against the Pittsburgh Steelers, Thompson went down under a pileup of players and suffered a complete dislocation of the right knee. After spending two weeks in the hospital, his knee packed in ice, Thompson was on his feet and walking without crutches when the Browns battled the Detroit Lions for the 1953 National League championship.

Thompson then spent a few weeks in the Florida sunshine and early in the spring began working out. He now is back in football, determined to win back his job as the Browns' right side linebacker.

Until he was injured, Thompson had the serious responsibility of calling the Browns' defensive signals and the manner in which he handled the job won the admiration of Coach Paul Brown. Long one of the most rugged competitors in the National League, Thompson has won a reputation as one of the hardest tacklers in football.

Thompson came to the Browns in 1949 from William and Mary, where he was the regular center for four seasons an All-Southern choice for three years and recipient of many All-American honors. Tommy also was vice-president of his college class in his freshman year. He was a member of the College All-Star squad in 1949, and was the football writers' choice as the outstanding lineman on the field.

Thompson was a member of the Browns a full season before he took over a regular assignment. He backed up the middle of the line for three years before moving to the right side when the Browns' secondary defense was realigned last season.

A native of New Jersey, Thompson now lives in Norfolk, Va., where he was made manager of the office of Scott, Horner & Mason, Inc., investment brokers, during the winter.
